

Welcome to the Industry Subject Matter Expert (ISME) Program application for WECC. The ISME program is a vital initiative designed to enhance the reliability and monitoring of the Bulk Electric System (BES) in the Western Interconnection. The program offers unique opportunities for collaboration between WECC and our valued stakeholders.

The ISME program plays a pivotal role in maintaining a resilient and secure power grid by bringing together subject matter experts from various entities within our region. Through this program, we want to harness the collective expertise of industry professionals to address the complex challenges facing the electricity sector.

As a prospective ISME, you can contribute your knowledge and insights to help shape the future of our electrical infrastructure monitoring efforts. Your involvement will directly affect the reliability and security of the BES, benefiting millions of people who rely on the Western Interconnection for their energy needs.

Please complete this application to express your interest in joining the effort. Provide the requested information, including your qualifications, interests, and willingness to participate in essential training. Your commitment to the ISME program is a significant step toward strengthening the Western Interconnection's reliability and security.

Thank you for your dedication to the energy industry and interest in WECC's ISME program.
